BRADLEY SCHERP: BIG BILLBOARDS

By Mark Nutter

Injured at work? I'm Bradley Scherp, Attorney at Law, and I have really big billboards.

Other attorneys claim to have big billboards. I invite you to compare. Go on. Get a ladder and a tape measure and see for yourself.

"I was in a forklift accident, and my legs were crushed. Bradley Scherp put me in his car and personally drove me around town so I could see his huge billboards."

Concerned about who will take care of your family when you're disabled? My billboards block out the sun.

"I work at a nuclear power plant. I lost all my hair. A Bradley Scherp billboard is bigger than my house."

Look at that. My nostrils are the size of beach balls. My teeth are as big as garage doors.

"Another attorney claimed to have big billboards. But he was a dwarf, so he wasn't the best judge."

Not just big, but numerous. I have hundreds of billboards along the highway. Drive by them fast and watch my facial expression change, like a massive flip book.

“At work, I was electrocuted while being exposed to deafening noise and inhaling noxious gasses. You can see a Bradley Scherp billboard a mile away.”

Am I on the side of a bus? Come on, I’m too big for that. Don’t make me laugh.

“I was injured while trapped inside a burning billboard. Fortunately, it wasn’t a Bradley Scherp billboard, which meant it was smaller, which meant I survived.”

Maybe if you stacked four buses on top of each other. And that’s a big maybe.

“I look forward to being injured at work, so I can be included in these testimonials— oh, hey, I guess that’s happening right now. Thank you, Bradley Scherp.”

Big billboards. This is my promise to you.
